The Crossover That Paid: Delma Thomas Wins Under a New Flag

Delma Thomas won St. Andrew North West for the NNP in 2022, left the party in 2023 and joined the NDC government. In 2026 she won again, by 785 votes, under the other party's colours, and her personal vote went with her.

BY GREG HOSTEN ST. ANDREW NORTH WEST, GRENADA

ST. ANDREW NORTH WEST, GRENADA—In 2022 Delma Thomas held St. Andrew North West for the New National Party by 131 votes, 1,898 to 1,767 for the NDC's Gloria Thomas. It was one of only six seats the NNP retained as it lost government.

In 2026 Ms. Thomas won the seat again, by 2,242 votes to 1,457, a majority of 785, but this time as the NDC's candidate. The NNP's Marcia Francis finished second, and the DPM's Olvine Holas took 39. A seat the NNP held four years ago is now one of the NDC's safer ones, and it arrived there by changing sides together with its member.

A MEMBER WHO WALKED

Ms. Thomas was first elected for St. Andrew North West in 2013 and served as a minister in the NNP government. On 8th May 2023 she resigned from the NNP with immediate effect, saying that her attempts to represent the constituency from within the party had been frustrated. Two weeks later, at a public meeting alongside Prime Minister Dickon Mitchell, she announced that she would work with the NDC government.

She subsequently joined the Cabinet. The New Today reported that her break with the NNP followed disagreements with Dr. Keith Mitchell over his succession. Whatever the full reasons, the NNP lost a sitting member less than a year after the 2022 election, and with her, the seat.

HER VOTE WENT WITH HER

The results show how much of the NNP's 2022 vote in St. Andrew North West belonged to Ms. Thomas personally. The NNP's vote fell by 441, from 1,898 to 1,457, while the NDC's rose by 475, from 1,767 to 2,242. The NNP's share of the two-party vote dropped from 51.8 per cent to 39.4 per cent, a fall of 12.4 points against 10.3 points nationally.

Those additional two points measure the crossover. In most seats the NNP fell by around the national swing or less; here it fell further, because the party's former member was standing against it and took part of its base with her.

THE OPPOSITE OF THE TOWN OF ST. GEORGE

The contrast with the Town of St. George is instructive. There, Peter David left the NNP, founded his own party and took 730 votes, splitting the opposition and handing the seat to the NDC by three votes.

Ms. Thomas took a different course. Rather than start a new party, she joined the government; rather than split the vote, she brought her supporters into the larger party, and the result was a comfortable win rather than a narrow loss. For a departing NNP member, the second route proved far more effective.

ONE DIVISION LEFT

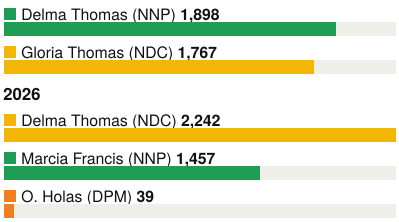

The polling-division returns show how thoroughly the seat changed hands. The NNP carried just 1 of the 16 divisions, the Paraclete Government School, by 99 votes to 80.

Everywhere else it lost, in places heavily. At the Paradise Medical Station the NNP won only 30.5 per cent of the two-party vote across two divisions, and at Paul's Bakery in Birchgrove 33.4 per cent. Even at La Fillette, the largest polling site with four divisions, it managed only 41.7 per cent.

The DPM's 39 votes were concentrated at Sio's Bar in Birchgrove, where it took 26; they did not affect the outcome.

TURNOUT FELL, TOO

In 2022 St. Andrew North West recorded the highest turnout in Grenada, at 76.7 per cent; in 2026 it fell to 69.1 per cent. The register grew by 634 names, but only 71 more ballots were cast, and 1,681 registered voters did not vote this year.

Measured against the whole electorate, the NNP won the votes of 39.6 per cent of all registered voters in 2022 and 26.8 per cent in 2026, while the NDC rose from 36.8 to 41.3 per cent. The seat did not simply switch; it switched decisively.

WHY IT MATTERS BEYOND ST. ANDREW

The NNP lost two of its six 2022 members to departures before the 2026 election: Ms. Thomas in 2023 and Mr. David in January 2025. Both seats were lost. In St. Andrew North West the member took her voters to the government; in the Town, the member took his voters to a new party and split the opposition.

A party that cannot keep its own members cannot keep their seats. Of all the lessons in this series, that may be the most uncomfortable for the NNP, because it has nothing to do with the NDC. It concerns how the party treats the people it has already elected.

THREE HUNDRED AND NINETY-THREE VOTERS

To win the seat back, the NNP needs 393 voters to switch sides, or 786 more supporters to turn out, almost half of those who stayed home. That is a considerable task in a seat of 5,432 voters, particularly against a sitting minister with a long personal record in the constituency.

There is, however, one advantage. Ms. Thomas's personal vote was built over many years, partly as an NNP member, and some of the voters who followed her in 2026 were once NNP voters. Those voters can be won back by a candidate and a party that give them a reason to return.

WHAT CAN BE DONE: A FOUR-YEAR PLAN FOR THE NORTH-WEST

St. Andrew North West is a long-term project, and the plan must begin with the candidate and with the party's own house.

Year one, 2027: choose a candidate who lives in the constituency and commit to that person for two elections. Open a permanent office, meet the branch members who stayed with the NNP after 2023, and rebuild the household list from scratch, beginning with Paraclete, the one division the party still holds.

Year two, 2028: concentrate on La Fillette and Mirabeau, the two largest polling sites, where the NNP took about 41 per cent; small gains there move the whole seat. Hold regular meetings with farmers, transport operators, young people and families in Birchgrove and Paradise.

Year three, 2029: recruit a captain for each of the 16 divisions. Hold the sitting member to account in public for what she has delivered as a minister for St. Andrew North West, measured against her own promises.

Year four, 2030: campaign for the voters who supported the NNP before 2023. The target is 393 switchers, and the starting point is the 441 NNP votes lost since 2022.

THE LESSON FOR EVERY NNP SEAT

Elected members are a party's most valuable asset and the hardest to replace. When they leave, they take part of the vote with them, whether to the other side or to a new party. The NNP lost two members after 2022, and it lost both seats in 2026.

Keeping members inside the tent requires a party that listens to them, resolves disputes internally and settles its leadership in a manner they can accept. That is national work rather than constituency work, but every seat in this series depends upon it.

WHAT IT MEANS FOR 2030/31

1. Keep your elected members: a departing MP takes part of the vote with them.
2. A member who joins the other side is more damaging than one who splits off.
3. Resolve leadership disputes inside the party, before they become resignations.
4. Rebuild from the one division still held: Paraclete.
5. Target La Fillette and Mirabeau, the two largest polling sites.
6. Win back former NNP voters who followed their member in 2023.
7. Captain all 16 divisions, with a permanent office.
8. Target 393 switchers, starting with the 441 votes lost since 2022.
